

ANNUAL SUMMER GEAR GUIDE

TrailRunner

On

A E

A T On co th

FA
Lea
tur

WA
Exp me

CO Firs
par

Hillary is wearing the Asics Favorite Long Sleeve ($45, www.asics.com) and New Balance NBx Half Tights ($50, www.newbalance.com).

Watches

POLAR RS800CX G3 | $500

This training computer includes both a heart-rate monitor and a 3.6-ounce GPS sensor (with arm strap) that measures speed, distance and location, and charts your run's elevation profile. The infrared USB data transmitter beams data directly to your computer for detailed workout analysis with the Polar ProTrainer 5 software.

TIMEX Ironman Road Trainer | $110

This relatively easy-to-operate, 1.1-ounce wrist computer with heart-rate monitor lets you set target training zones and track your recovery between intervals. The workout-review feature reports heart-rate data, total calories burned and more. www.TimexIronman.com

Trainer | $110

o-operate, 1.1-er with heart-rate target train-your recovery he workout-review t-rate data, total more. com

tanium Sleek | $290

es who venture off hefty (3.5 ounces) but durable all-in-one wrist navigation system displays real-time weather and temperature, and includes altimeter, digital compass, chronograph and alarm. www.origowatch.com

HIGHGEAR Axio Max | $150

The Axio Max, with an altimeter, barometer, thermometer and digital compass, offers great value. The data log records workouts, and several alarms help you monitor your hydration, altitude change and recovery intervals. 2.5 oz., www.highgear.com

Light Systemes

- PRINCETON TEC Amp 1.0 | $15 | The palm-sized, waterproof flashlight weighs almost nothing and is the perfect companion on dark runs. Two AAA batteries power 14 lumens of light up to 52 meters for three hours. 2.0 oz., www.princetonotec.com
- PETZL MYO RXP | $100 | Customize light output (to a maximum of 140 lumens) and preserve battery life with the water-resistant, programmable MYO RXP's 10 power levels. When you need extra illumination, the "Boost" mode casts a brilliant 160 lumens for 20 seconds. 6.2 oz., www.petzl.com

